Trailerlogic Awarded Contract to Build over 250 Solar-Powered Specialty Vehicles

BELTON, S.C. – July 31, 2012 - Trailerlogic, a Belton-based leader in custom cargo trailer and specialty vehicle manufacturing, is proud to announce a newly awarded contract valued at approximately $1.6 million. The contract calls for Trailerlogic to design and engineer upwards of 250 solar-powered specialty vehicle kiosks for an international customer.

As a result of the contract award, Trailerlogic will expand its facilities to include an additional 14,000 square feet production facility in Anderson and will generate more than 30 jobs. "Seeing as the evaluation process for the contract award took more than three months to complete, we consider this contract an outstanding opportunity and victory for Trailerlogic," said Michael Richardson, President and Chief Executive Officer of Trailerlogic. "It will increase our local economic competitiveness and help stimulate the job market in our area." Trailerlogic will also seek to further affirm their support for "Made in America" manufacturing by using only domestic suppliers and U.S.-made materials.

Under the contract, each specialty vehicle kiosk will include custom designed interiors for multiple entrepreneurial applications and feature small-scale solar panels that will deliver high efficiency power. The solar panels are an affordable and readily accessible option that replaces the need for generator or shoreline power. As energy costs rise and people seek to lessen their carbon footprints, renewable energy resources – namely solar – make sense. "This particular project serves as a premier example of how to be more environmentally responsible,” said Richardson.

The contract also contains conditions that, if exercised, would call on Trailerlogic to build an additional 250 specialty vehicle kiosks at a later date. The conditions would increase the total contract value to over $3 million.

Anyone interested in applying for a position with the company should apply in person at Trailerlogic, 4102 Highway 29 N, Belton, S.C. Tuesday and Thursday between the hours of 9 a.m. and 11 a.m.
