Trailerlogic Awarded National Association of Trailer Manufacturers' Certification

BELTON, S.C. – March 1, 2013 – Trailerlogic today announced that its headquarters in Belton, S.C. was awarded certification and membership with the National Association of Trailer Manufacturers (NATM). NATM serves to promote safety and quality in the trailer manufacturing industry. NATM members who are verified to be in compliance with the NATM guidelines display a decal on each of their trailers, which are exemplary of a commitment to safety, quality, and excellence.

“Since the inception of Trailerlogic, safety has been a number-one priority,” said Michael Richardson, President and Chief Executive Officer. “We have banners displayed throughout our production facility to serve as reminders of the safety principles and safety is generally the first thing we talk about at every meeting. We like to try to keep safety at the forefront of everyone’s mind from the CEO down to the shop foreman to the production employee.”

NATM certified Trailerlogic with an onsite audit that proved they have processes in place to build trailers that meet the criteria of Federal Motor Vehicle Safety Standards (FMVSS), Department of Transportation (DOT), National Highway Traffic and Safety Administration (NHTSA) and secondarily, the Federal Motor Carrier Safety Administration (FMCSA).
